GOT $182,000 IN DIAMONDS

"They Hypnotized My Client," Says Counsel for R. A. Breidenbach, the Importer. Who Gave Up the Diamonds and Can't Collect on the Paper Promises.

"They hypnotized my client," said Sol Oppenheimer yesterday when on behalf of Rudolf A. Breidenbach, who says he gave up $182,549 worth of diamonds to Maurice C. Dreshfield and George H. Carpenter in return for some paper promises to pay. he filed a petition in bankruptcy against Dreshfield and Carpenter.

Breidenbach gave up the diamonds be tween September 9 and December 30.

The petitioning creditors are the same in each case-Rudolf A. Breidenbach.$175,-608 in the case of Mr. Dreshfield and $173, 103 in the case of Mr. Carpenter; Henry (Morath, $2,859 in each case on a note of Mr. Carpenter, and Linn Wagner, $1,550 in in each case on a note of Mr. Carpenter.

It is alleged that Dreshfield and Carpenter in conjunction obtained the diamonds from Breidenbach on credit upon materially false statements regarding the financial condition of Carpenter as well as other false statements. Breidenbach, relying on these statements, accepted 33 notes made by Carpenter, mostly payable to Dreshfield and indorsed by him. Many of the notes have been protested for non-payment, and Breidenbach alleges that Dreshfield and Carpenter never intended to pay for the diamonds.

Breidenbach also received in payment Breidenbach also received in payment for the diamonds from Carpenter notes for $35,000 alleged to have been made by the William Kavanaugh Company of Norwalk. Ohio, payable to the Norwalk Steel and Iron Company of Norwalk, Ohio, which companies Mr. Carpenter represented were in excellent financial condition. Carpenter guaranteed the payment of the notes. When the notes became due they were not paid and Breidenbach says that Mr. Carpenter never intended that the notes would be paid.

The companies have gone into bankruptcy. It is also alleged that Dreshfield and Carpenter represented that Carpenter was president and sole proprietor of the Monarch Fire Appliance Company, and that in consideration of the delivery of the diamonds Breidenbach would receive from Carpenter much stock of and a large share in the company. Breidenbach has not yet got this stock and he says he now believes Carpenter never intended to give him a share.

Breidenbach further alleges that the misrepresentations, the unfulfilled promises and the notes were part and parcel of a conspiracy to obtain the diamonds and never pay for them.

The diamonds were delivered as follows:

The diamonds were delivered as follows: September 9, $5,733; September 17, $14,809; September 24, $9,858; October 2, $31,162; November 9, $6,998; November 17, $27,445; November 28, $3,342; November 27, $15,317; December 7, $22,701, and December 30, $45,378. Carpenter paid a note of $3,772 on November 26 and two other payments, making $9,445 in all. Breidenbach has notes of Carpenter amounting to $20,459 which of Carpenter amounting to $20,459 which have been protested; notes of the William Kavanaugh Company for $35,000, and 25 other notes of Carpenter which are not yet due; also lent Dreshfield $2.500. It is also alleged that Dreshfield and Carpenter are insolvent and committed acts of bankruptcy by disposing of diamonds to the amount of $173.103. Judge Holt appointed William Lesser of Lesser Bros, receiver in both cases and fixed his bond at $1,000. Carpenter never had any rating at Bradstreet's and has been known as a promoter for many years. It is said he is a graduate of Princeton and son of a clerry-man. Dreshfield has been if the jewelry and diamond business since 1902. Breidenbach is an importer of diamonds.

She went to vandros, she says, to have him help get her position back, which he said would do on the payment of a $13 fee. She paid this and subsequently, she says, he induced her to buy 100 shares of mining stock he was selling, for which, she says, she paid him $50. The stock, she says, proved worthless. The boy is at the home of Dr. Kremer and has been there since his mother was arrested in Boston.

Assistant District Attorney Train produced a letter she admitted having written her husband some time ago. In the letter she told her husband that she had been intimate with a number of men, naming them, one of them being the head of a corporation in this city. She denied that what was in the letter was true, saying that she had written the letter to her husband to provide evidence for him in a suit for divorce which he had started.

Forrest Clarke, her husband, who got the divorce, will be a witness against her. It is expected that the trial will end to-day.

HOW MANY ROOMS TO A HOTEL? When State Law Says Ten Can State Official Say Sixteen.

An application by the State Excise Commission for the revocation of the license issued to Mary A. Corcoran for the premises at 111th street and St. Nicholas avenue came before Justice Truax in the Supreme Court yesterday and an argument was advanced which seriously affects the 1,600 or more "Raines law" hotels in the city. The State Excise Commission holds that

"hotel" must comply with the building laws of the district, and under that con-struction a building containing less than wixteen rooms above the basement is not a hotel in this county.

Let a Corcoran's lawyers urged that the commission was bound by the terms of the Raines law itself, which says "at least ten rooms above the basement, exclusive of those used by the proprietor and his family and devoted to the accommodation

CHILD LABOR'S BIGGEST TASK

IS TO STOP PUPILS FROM TOO MUCH WORK AT HOME,

Reports Investigator at Conference on Congestion of Population—Italian Ans-bassador Visits Exhibit and Tells of Gift Made by His Country to Help Work.

Baron Mayor des Planches, the Italian Ambassador, came here yesterday for a private view of the exhibit of congestion of population now being held in the American Museum of Natural History in connection with the conference on the same subject. He was accompanied by Miss Amy G. Bernardy of Smith College and Chevalier Bernard Attolico, and was received by Dr. Antonio Stella of the Society for Italian Immigrants, Mrs. Vladimir Simkhovitch, chairman of the general committee on the exhibit, and other members.

Ambassador des Planches's visit was chiefly to inspect the result of investigations made last summer in a congested Italian block bounded by Prince, Houston, Elizabeth and Mott streets. Because of that an appropriation of $1,000 was made by the Italian Government to aid the committee in further investigations, announcement of this being made by Baron des Planches yesterday for the first time.

Miss Julia Richman, school superintendent of the district on the lower East Side, speaking on the subject of "School Problems in Congested Districts," at the conference yesterday, said that the part time problem, which is the most distressing one, results in two serious evils. If a girl demonstrates any ability to do housework or to assist in any ability to do housework or to assist in some wage earning occupation of the mother, a disinclination to keep her in school develops long before she fits the conditions required by the child abor law. It may also be true of the boy, but the more serious feature is the effect of having him on the street for half a day. The street habit becomes chronic and he is likely to turn out a truant or an incoris likely to turn out a truant or an incor-

"Another evil is the very large classes which congested districts always supply," said Miss Richman. "No teacher should be charged with the responsibility of looking after new than forty children. Although after more than forty children. Although contrary to the laws of the Board of Edu-cation, principals occasionally put more than sixty children in one room.

"One of the saddest effects of the congested districts is the absolute inability to secure from the children that respect for law and authority outside of the school building which good citizenship demands. When streets are given up to pushcart pedlers who remain in undisputed possession in spite of the city ordinances; when merchants use sidewalks for storing their wares and no one interferes; when tenement house inspectors fall to inspect; when careless persons are permitted to when careless persons are permitted to throw garbage and other refuse from the windows into the streets, and all these offences remain unchecked and increase hourly, the task of the school to teach the children how to be good citizens is prac-tically wasted effort."

Miss Mary Van Eleck of the Educational Alliance, who investigated child labor in the tenement houses for the Consumers' League, made some statements concerning the conditions she found. While some day notified the Paterson police that he holds a warrant for the arrest of Charles of them dodge the truant officers altogether D. Alvandros on a charge of grand lar-ceny. > the employment of children under 14 years of age in the factories, stores or other speci-fied work places have never been extended to the home workrooms," said Miss Van

> "The last winter we found 558 children employed at such work during the year. The report of the Department of Labor shows that in one year 16,068 workrooms were licensed, and that 27,019 persons found employment therein, and from the fact that there are also between 5,000 and 6,000 licensed tenements in New York in which manufacturing of various sorts may be carried on in the home the conclusion is inevitable that there is an alarmingly ex-tensive employment of little children."

> Among the visitors at the conference yesterday were Charles Mulford Robinson of Rochester, Prof. Frank A. Fetter of Cornell, Robert W. Binkerd, secretary of the Buffalo Municipal League, Dr. George W. Goler, Health Officer of Rochester, George E. Rowell, secretary of the Schenectady Chamber of Commerce, and William B. Jones, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of Albany.

BLACK HAND MURDER THREAT. Woman Charged With Sending It to Man She Had Trouble With.

Mrs. Rosina C. Morton, 55 years old, of 311 West Fifty-fourth street, was held in $200 bail by Magistrate Crane in the Tombs police court yesterday charged with sending a threatening letter signed Black Hand to Alexander J. Ray of 347 West Fiftieth street.

Mr. Ray received the letter last Saturday, and as he had had trouble with Mrs. Morton he at once suspected her. The letter, the handwriting of which is alleged to be that of Mrs. Morton, was as follows: You had better skip out of New York. If you don't there will be murder in the first degree committed. It won't be a case of broken jaw this time. BLACK HAND

A number of Mrs. Morton's neighbors were in court with letters in a handwrit-ing similar to that of the one received by Mr. Ray. These letters were of an annoying character.

GOT HELP TO TRAP VIDAVER

MONTGOMERY WENT TO JEROME WITH HIS STORY.

District Attorney Doubted if Anything So "Raw" in the Extortion Line as the Banker Alleged Against the Attorney General's Colleague Could Be True.

William R. Montgomery, ex-president of the Hamilton Bank, testified yesterday before Magistrate Herrman at the Tombs at the hearing on the charge of attempted extortion he has made against Nathan Vidaver, who was one of Attorney-General Jackson's special deputies. Mr Montgomery said that he went to District Attorney Jerome with the proposition that Vidaver ought to be trapped. He told Jerome that Moses H. Grossman had told him Vidaver was the man to see if he wanted unfavorable criticism of the Hamilton Bank from the Attorney-General's office stopped and that Vidaver wanted $1,500. After he had gone over the details and told the District Attorney of "Auerbach, Jackson's go-between." Jerome

"I don't believe you. I can't believe that anything as raw as paying over the money has been done even in this town. An attempt was made by Frank Mos cross-examination to show that when Montgomery and his bank got into trouble Montgomery hired lawyers who might help him with the courts and prosecuting authorities. He denied that he had em-ployed Alton B. Parker because Parker was friendly with Justice Betts of Kingston. before whom the Hamilton Bank receiver-ship proceedings were pending; Lawyer James F Gifford because he knew Clark Williams, Superintendent of Banks; James W. Osborne because he was once an Assistant District Attorney—"and now a Deputy Attorney-General," added Mr. Rresel—and Howard S. Gans because he is a friend of Mr. Jerome. He said that Grossman came to him and volunteered to help in getting assents from depositors for the reopening of the bans. Grossman did a lot of work, Mr. Moss suggested. Yes, he was always butting in," said

Montgomery. Montgomery.

Grossman, who was in court, made a hot speech, demanding that he be allowed to examine the witness, but Magistrate Herrman shut him off. Then Montgomery said that Vidaver had been suggested to him by Grossman as a man close to Jackson.

Montgomery said he first thought of telling Mr. Jerome after he had had a talk with Frank White who was Jackson's with Frank White, who was Jackson's first deputy and who was appointed receiver for the Hamilton Bank. White told him that he had got his first knowledge of Montgomery's overdrafts at the Hamilton Bank from the Attorney-General Control of the Con raintion bank from the Attorney-Gen-eral's office. As Montgomery had men-tioned the overdrafts to Vidaver, saying they were technical affairs, he concluded that Vidaver must have told Jackson. That made Montgomery feel that it was up to him to tell the District Attorney, and he had luncheon with Mr. Jerome and he had !uncheon with Mr. Jerome and his counsel, Howard Gans.

"Didn't you know that the feeling between the District Attorney and the Attorney-General was not friendly?" asked

Mr. Moss. Mr. Moss.

Montgomery said he didn't know that, and that he didn't know that any information reflecting on the Attorney-General's office would be acceptable at Mr. Jerome's office. Of his conversation over the telephone with Lawyer Grossman the morning of the afterney Vidwor was accepted. of the afternoon Vidaver was arrested he thought he had some notes at his house. It was agreed that Mr. Moss and Detective Fitzsimmons should go with him to his house to see if he could find the notes. The hearing was adjourned to allow the search to be made last night.

HIT WASHER WITH BUNDLE.

Girl Says Youth Put His Arm Around Her and Called Her "Chicken."

There was some excitement at the corner of Forty-fourth street and Eighth avenue yesterday afternoon when a young woman of athletic build struck a youth with a bundle she carried in her hand, the occurrence attracting the attention of a mounted policeman, a plain clothes man and several hundred citizens.

The girl, who said she was May Graham of 300 West Forty-third street, declared that the young man had followed her several blocks, called her "chicken" and insisted that she go along with him. When she refused, she declared he put his arm about her.

The man, who gave the name of John Lieberman and said he lived in Jersey City, was arrested and in the West Side court was held in $1,000 for further examination
